The Reynolds Tobacco Campaign

The Farm Labor Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO (FLOC) is a labor union representing thousands of farmworkers throughout the Midwest and South.

Tens of thousands of farmworkers travel to North Carolina each year for the tobacco harvest. They toil endless hours for sub-poverty wages under some of the most dangerous working conditions in the nation.

Reynolds American, Inc. reaps billions of dollars in profits each year, while farmworkers continue to face serious human rights abuses in the tobacco fields and labor camps. Though Reynolds does not directly employ farmworkers, it has a moral responsibility to address the exploitation in its supply chain.

For over 3 years, Reynolds executives have refused to even meet with farmworkers time and time again.

The annual shareholder's meeting is our chance to make sure farmworkers' voices are heard. FLOC supporters from labor, faith, civil rights, campus, and the broader community will be inside and outside of the meeting calling on the tobacco giant to end human rights abuses in their supply chain. In these times of attacks on working people from Wisconsin to North Carolina, it is even more important that we stand together in solidarity.
